

Dr Chris McMahon

Chris G McMahon is a Consultant Sexual Health Physician and Fellow of the Royal Australian College of Physician's Chapter of Sexual Medicine. He is an Associate Professor in the Faculty of Health Sciences, University of Sydney and the Director of the Australian Centre for Sexual Health in Sydney, Australia. Dr McMahon is a committee chairman for the WHO Second and Third International Consultation on Sexual Dysfunction (ICSD) and a chairman of the International Society of Sexual Medicine (ISSM) medical and research standards committee. He is an associate editor of the Journal of Sexual Medicine, an associate section editor of the British Journal of Urology and a member of the editorial board of several journals including the International Journal of Sexual Health and Current Sexual Health Reports. He is a referee for multiple international peer-reviewed medical journals including the Journal of Sexual Medicine, the Journal of Urology, Urology, European Journal of Urology, the British Journal of Urology, the International Journal of Impotence Research, the Medical Journal of Australia and Expert Opinion on Investigational Drugs. He is a member of several local, regional and international medical associations and a committee member of the International Society of Sexual Medicine (ISSM). He has been invited to lecture on sexual medicine worldwide and has published extensively on sexual health. He has published over 60 original research and invited review articles in peer reviewed international medical journals, and 17 book chapters. His recent research has focused on drug treatment for patients with refractory erectile dysfunction (ED) and drug treatment of premature ejaculation.

Dr McMahon was the Chairperson of the Local Scientific Committee for the 18th WAS Congress held in Sydney in 2007. He was awarded Life Membership of ASSERT in 2007 in appreciation for the work he did for the Congress which was internationally recognised as highly successful.